SECURITY & POLITICS

In early June, Azerbaijan again intensified its violations of the cease-fire agreement on the border with north-eastern Armenia. From June 4-6, Azerbaijani forces initiated a number of subversive actions on the border with Tavush province resulting in at least three Armenian service members killed and six wounded; civilian infrastructure in border villages also came under shelling. Azeri military forces also attacked positions in south-eastern Karabakh, killing one serviceman and wounding two. In each case, Armenian forces undertook retaliatory punitive actions against the aggressor; Azerbaijan admitted deaths of ten servicemen in the same period.

These attacks were condemned by international mediators, including the United States. The violence coincided with the visit of U.S. State Secretary Hillary Clinton to the South Caucasus region. Secretary Clinton ruled out military solution to the Karabakh conflict saying that a peacefully negotiated settlement is the only alternative.

Members of the U.S. Congress condemned Azerbaijani aggression on the Armenian-Azerbaijani border and urged State Secretary Clinton to deliver strong messages to Aliyev's regime about the incidents.

The OSCE Chairperson-in-Office, Irish Foreign Minister Eamon Gilmore called the Karabakh conflict parties to remove snipers from the Line of Contact. Unlike Azerbaijan, Armenia and NKR continue to agree to reciprocal removal of snipers.

Armenian diplomatic missions in New York and Vienna informed the United Nations and the OSCE about these Azerbaijani provocations against Armenia and Artsakh, noting Azerbaijan's continued refusal to investigate them.

The U.S. House Appropriations Committee proposed an increase in aid to Nagorno Karabakh from $2 million to "at least" $5 million in Fiscal Year (FY) 2013 State, Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill. The Senate version of the bill did not include a direct allocation but expressed support for the Karabakh peace process.

Rep. Howard Berman (D-CA), Ranking Democrat of the House Foreign Affairs Committee urged U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton to stop a proposed sale of military hardware to Azerbaijan due to this country's continued war rhetoric and attacks against Armenia and Artsakh.

The Rhode Island House of Representatives passed a resolution that calls on the U.S. President and Congress to recognize the independence of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic. NKR parliament welcomed the resolution.

The City of Providence marked the 20th anniversary of Shushi's liberation with Mayor Angel Taveras issuing a relevant proclamation. Mayor of Shushi Garen Avakimyan sent a thank you letter to Mayor Taveras.

French Senators Bernard Fournier, Sophie Joissains and Philippe Marini visited NKR. During their visit, they emphasized the right of Artsakh people to self-determination. They dismissed Azerbaijan's threats to "blacklist" them from visits to that country.

NKR parliamentary delegation led by Speaker Ashot Ghulyan visited the United Kingdom to meet members of British parliament and academia, as well as local Armenian community representatives. Member of the British House of Lords Baroness Caroline Cox led a delegation on its visit to Artsakh.

The Independent of London published a letter of Dr. Adrian C. Pont about continued Azerbaijani shelling of Armenian borders.

Armenia and NKR have repeatedly stated their readiness to pull back snipers, but Azerbaijan continues to refuse to do so.

NKR President Bako Sahakyan urged the Karabakh conflict mediators to bring Azerbaijan onto a constructive path and restore full-fledged format of peace negotiations during his meeting with OSCE Minsk Group Co-Chairs who arrived in Stepanakert from Baku after crossing the Line of Contact between Artsakh and Azerbaijan. In Yerevan and Baku the mediators met presidents of Armenia and Azerbaijan and concluded their visit by issuing a statement that reiterated that the sides' political will to achieve peace is best demonstrated by refraining from maximalist positions, respecting the 1994 ceasefire agreement, and abstaining from hostile public rhetoric.

The mediators noted that Azerbaijani officials' threats against civilian aircraft flying to and from Artsakh were not acceptable, saying they received renewed assurances from the sides that they will reject any threat or use of force against civil aircraft, pursue the matter through diplomatic steps, and refrain from politicizing the issue.

NKR Central Election Commission approved the voting ballot for the upcoming presidential elections. Three candidates' names are listed alphabetically on the ballot: Vitaly Balasanyan, Bako Sahakyan and Arkady Soghomonyan. Dear Secretary Clinton:

On behalf of the people and authorities of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic, Artsakh, I am writing to congratulate you and the American people in connection with the United States' Independence Day.

On July 4, 236 years ago, the American people has reached their long-cherished goal of freedom, and became masters of own destiny. Your struggle for self-determination has motivated other freedom-loving nations throughout the globe, including the Nagorno Karabakh Republic (NKR), to raise their voice against suppression and discrimination of the universal rights and liberties.

We highly appreciate the tireless efforts of the U.S. Administration towards reaching a final peace and strengthening stability in the South Caucasus. The NKR authorities are determined to continue a constructive involvement for finding a positive and workable solution to the existing problems with the neighboring Azerbaijan. Also, the people of Artsakh are grateful to you and the entire American nation for the continued humanitarian assistance, which has helped to rebuild our lives after a devastating aggression by Azerbaijan.

Despite the regional challenges, our republic remains committed to continue developing as a free and democratic country, with well-functioning state institutions and a vibrant civil society. We are looking forward to continue cooperation with the United States in promoting our shared vision of a democratic, secure and predictable South Caucasus.

Once again, I would like to congratulate your country with the holiday, and wish the American nation peace and prosperity.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Panetta:

On behalf of the people and authorities of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic, Artsakh, I am writing to congratulate you and the American people in connection with the United States' Independence Day.

On July 4, 236 years ago, the American people has reached their long-cherished goal of freedom, and became masters of own destiny. Your struggle for self-determination has motivated other freedom-loving nations throughout the globe, including the Nagorno Karabakh Republic (NKR), to raise their voice against suppression and discrimination of the universal rights and liberties.

We highly appreciate the tireless efforts of the U.S. Administration towards reaching a final peace and strengthening stability in the South Caucasus. The NKR authorities are determined to continue a constructive involvement for finding a positive and workable solution to the existing problems with the neighboring Azerbaijan. Also, the people of Artsakh are grateful to you and the entire American nation for the continued humanitarian assistance, which has helped to rebuild our lives after a devastating aggression by Azerbaijan.

Despite the regional challenges, our republic remains committed to continue developing as a free and democratic country, with well-functioning state institutions and a vibrant civil society. We are looking forward to continue cooperation with the United States in promoting our shared vision of a democratic, secure and predictable South Caucasus.

Once again, I would like to congratulate your country with the holiday, and wish the American nation peace and prosperity.

Sincerely,

On behalf of the people and government of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic, Artsakh, I am writing to congratulate you and the American people in connection with the United States' Independence Day.

On July 4, 236 years ago, the American people has reached their long-cherished goal of freedom, and became masters of own destiny. Your struggle for self-determination has motivated other freedom-loving nations throughout the globe, including the Nagorno Karabakh Republic (NKR), to raise their voice against suppression and discrimination of the universal rights and liberties.

We highly appreciate the tireless efforts of the U.S. Administration towards reaching a final peace and strengthening stability in the South Caucasus. The NKR authorities are determined to continue a constructive involvement for finding a positive and workable solution to the existing problems with the neighboring Azerbaijan.

Also, the people of Artsakh are grateful to you and the entire American nation for the continued humanitarian assistance, which has helped to rebuild our lives after a devastating aggression by Azerbaijan.

Despite the regional challenges, our republic remains committed to continue developing as a free and democratic country, with well-functioning state institutions and a vibrant civil society. We are looking forward to continue cooperation with the US Congress in promoting our shared vision of a democratic, secure and predictable South Caucasus.

Once again, I would like to congratulate your country with the holiday, and wish the American nation peace and prosperity.

Sincerely,

On behalf of the people and government of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic, Artsakh, I am writing to congratulate you and the American people in connection with the United States' Independence Day.

On July 4, 236 years ago, the American people has reached their long-cherished goal of freedom, and became masters of own destiny. Your struggle for self-determination has motivated other freedom-loving nations throughout the globe, including the Nagorno Karabakh Republic (NKR), to raise their voice against suppression and discrimination of the universal rights and liberties.

We highly appreciate the tireless efforts of the U.S. Administration towards reaching a final peace and strengthening stability in the South Caucasus. The NKR authorities are determined to continue a constructive involvement for finding a positive and workable solution to the existing problems with the neighboring Azerbaijan.

Also, the people of Artsakh are grateful to you and the entire American nation for the continued humanitarian assistance, which has helped to rebuild our lives after a devastating aggression by Azerbaijan.

Despite the regional challenges, our republic remains committed to continue developing as a free and democratic country, with well-functioning state institutions and a vibrant civil society. We are looking forward to continue cooperation with the US Congress in promoting our shared vision of a democratic, secure and predictable South Caucasus.

Once again, I would like to congratulate your country with the holiday, and wish the American nation peace and prosperity.

Dear Mrs. Pelosi.

On behalf of the people and government of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic, Artsakh, I am writing to congratulate you and the American people in connection with the United States' Independence Day.

On July 4, 236 years ago, the American people has reached their long-cherished goal of freedom, and became masters of own destiny. Your struggle for self-determination has motivated other freedom-loving nations throughout the globe, including the Nagorno Karabakh Republic (NKR), to raise their voice against suppression and discrimination of the universal rights and liberties.

We highly appreciate the tireless efforts of the U.S. Administration towards reaching a final peace and strengthening stability in the South Caucasus. The NKR authorities are determined to continue a constructive involvement for finding a positive and workable solution to the existing problems with the neighboring Azerbaijan.

Also, the people of Artsakh are grateful to you and the entire American nation for the continued humanitarian assistance, which has helped to rebuild our lives after a devastating aggression by Azerbaijan.

Despite the regional challenges, our republic remains committed to continue developing as a free and democratic country, with well-functioning state institutions and a vibrant civil society. We are looking forward to continue cooperation with the US Congress in promoting our shared vision of a democratic, secure and predictable South Caucasus.

Once again, I would like to congratulate your country with the holiday, and wish the American nation peace and prosperity.

Sincerely,

Ashot GHULIAN
